Presents...

Wilderness Skills: a 4-week Homeschool Enrichment Series

Class Dates and Topics:

March 17: Weather Observations

What influences what we do, where we go and how we dress? If you guessed the weather, you're right! In this class we're going to learn how to observe the weather using temperature, barometer, wind direction and speed. We'll also observe cloud types and other natural indicators that help us study and predict the weather.

March 24: Using a Map and Compass

During this class students will learn how to read a topographical map and use it with a compass to traverse Fernbrook's map and compass course. These valuable survival tools will enable us to travel around the farm, fields and forests as we hunt for clues that will unravel age-old mysteries of the farm.

March 31: Wilderness Safety & Survival Shelters

This class will teach us how to travel safely and use basic survival skills in the wilderness. We'll learn everything from how to meet our needs in the wilderness to the importance of conserving our energy when lost. Our class will work together to turn the forest floor of leaves and sticks into a well-built survival shelter, after learning how to choose shelter location and other strategies for protecting themselves from the elements.

April 7: Fire Building and Outdoor Cooking

During this class we'll learn how to safely construct a fire and cook a campfire meal. Students will understand the importance of fire safety and how fires can help us survive outdoors. Together we'll collect tinder & kindling and see if we can start our fire without matches by using flint or a bow drill.

Space is limited to 10 students!
